WORKING DOCUMENT

Birr Theatre
Arts Centre

Introduction

Central to the arts activity in the town of Birr, is Birr Theatre & Arts Centre which provides a space for performances, visual arts, workshops and rehearsals for professional and amateur artists and audiences living and working in the Offaly region. Since opening in July 2000, we consistently deliver a high-quality arts programme to a loyal audience base and have supported artists as they build their careers.

“Birr has a rich and diverse creative ecosystem of interconnected cultural resources within the community. Each cultural resource plays an important role in shaping the town’s arts and culture scene. Facilities, spaces, festivals, makers, artists, designers, arts organisations, tourism and businesses are all connected to one another and in turn, support the health and vitality of the place”

Louise Browne & Associates, June 2019

Located in the south of Offaly close to the north Tipperary and east Galway borders, Birr Theatre & Arts Centre is a unique and valuable asset significantly contributing to the cultural landscape of the region.

It is widely recognised that the arts are not an isolated sphere of activity but reach into most aspects of people’s lives. Providing for arts development ensures a vibrant and creative community. Many community groups and development agencies use the arts as a tool for engaging with disadvantaged groups. The arts are non-judgmental and accepting of all abilities and backgrounds and an important factor in breaking down barriers that exist with disadvantaged groups. Birr Theatre and Arts Centre provides a valuable resource in the county, and surrounding region, working towards breaking down those barriers and encouraging greater participation in the community. Audiences travel from far afield to attend events here, thus contributing significantly to the local economy.

This working document, outlines how Birr Theatre & Arts Centre plans to keep up to date and relevant to the artists we support and to our audiences. This document incorporates our obligations to our main stakeholders: Pobal, Offaly County Council, The Arts Council and is informed by their own strategies.
